Who are you my love?
To me you are still a mystery
I ask the stars above
But they don't know you
Even they don't know you

You can't hide your soul
I can see you; still, I want to know you
When will you be whole?
You don't know
You don't know....do you...?

But you won't break
No you won't crumble that wall
With so much at stake
Will you even bend at all?

Are we somehow unfinished?
Our souls but left undone?
Or now are we diminished...
When we fail to love?

But how can we love
If we cannot risk?
Will we keep up our walls
And settle for this?

You say give me time; and it takes time that's true;
And I understand but what more can I do?

If you won't break
No you won't crumble that wall
With so much at stake
Will you even bend at all?

Who are you my love
To me you are still a mystery
I ask the stars above
But they don't know you
Even they don't know you
